Port Ewen Man Killed by Car on Route 9-W Today

Patrick Gallagher, 48, Dies at Kingston Hospital Following Accident South of the Bridge; Coroner Notified

Kingston Driver

Car Driven by Louis H. Ostrander of O'Neil Street—Autopsy Performed Today

Patrick Gallagher, 48, of Port Ewen, died at the Kingston Hospital at 2:40 o'clock this morning from injuries received when he was struck by a car about 1:15 o'clock while walking along 9-W near the top of the hill just south of the Port Ewen bridge.

Gallagher was struck by a Plymouth sedan driven by Louis H. Ostrander of 120 O'Neil street, Kingston, and who took the unconscious man to the Kingston Hospital following the accident.

According to the story told to Deputy Sheriffs Brown and McCullough by William Harnen of 3 East Union street, who was with Gallagher at the time of the accident, the two men had left Rondout some time between 12 and 12:30, Harnen accompanying Gallagher home. It was about 1:15, according to Harnen, when as the two men were walking in the road, the Ostrander car suddenly appeared over the brow of the hill.

Ostrander put on his brakes when he saw Gallagher in front of his car and stopped within a short distance, but not before the car had struck Gallagher, who was pitched forward over the hood and against the windshield and then thrown some 20 feet to the pavement, landing on the white line in the roadway.

Following Gallagher's death Coroner Michael Galletta was notified and the sheriff's office notified District Attorney Murray, who ordered an autopsy performed by Drs. J. S. Taylor and Joseph Jacobson.

The deceased man some time since returned to Port Ewen, his former home, from West New York, and had been living alone in his old home. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Catharine Clark, of 411 18th street, West New York, who was notified by the sheriff's office of the death of her brother.

Not 'Unexpected'

London, Oct. 8 (AP)—Insurgent officials in London said today an announcement of the withdrawal of 10,000 Italian fighters from Spain "would not be unexpected." Spanish insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco, they said, already has agreed to such withdrawal, although an official announcement from Salamanca has not been received.

Leads All Other Regions

Washington, Oct. 8 (AP) — The Public Works Administration says that its region No. 1, comprising New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the New England states, led all other regions in the 1938 PWA program. The northeast region was first both in number of applications and in the volume of construction requested. September 30 was the last date applications could be received.

10 Arrests Made

Singapore, Oct. 8 (AP)—Ten arrests had been made today in connection with an attempt to overthrow the Siamese government. It was believed those arrested intended to try to restore former King Prajadhipok to the throne from which he abdicated March 3, 1935, to be followed by his young nephew, now King Mihidol. The minister of agriculture fled from Bangkok.

Van Ingen Gives Dates for Literacy Tests for Voters

School Superintendent Outlines Law and Qualifications of Those Would Vote Here for First Time

Announcement of dates for literacy test for local voters was made by School Superintendent B. C. Van Ingen today. The following is the report:

At the general election in 1921 an amendment to article II, section I, of the State Constitution was passed which provides:

"After January 1, 1922, no person shall become entitled to vote by attaining majority, by naturalization or otherwise, unless such person is also able, except for physical disability, to read and write English, and suitable laws shall be passed by the Legislature to enforce this provision."

The former test of reading an abstract from the constitution of this state given by the election inspectors, is abolished.

The general qualifications of voters are as follows:

Voter must have been a citizen for 90 days.

Voter must be 21 years of age or more.

Voter must have lived five years in the United States.

Voter must have lived one year in the state.

Voter must have lived four months in the county.

Voter must have lived 30 days in the election district.

Voter must possess evidence of literacy if a new voter.

The qualifications as to time must exist as of the day of election.

Evidence of Literacy

The evidence of literacy which all new voters must present to the election inspectors is one of the following:

A diploma from an eighth grade elementary school in which English has been the language of instruction, or of a higher school.

A certificate of literacy issued by the school authorities under the rules and regulations of the Regents.

Certificate of literacy can be issued without examination under the following conditions, viz: "To new voters who can present evidence of having completed the work prescribed for the sixth grade of the public day schools of the state, or its equivalent in night school." Such applicant should be particular to secure from the principal of his school a certificate stating the grade completed. Such procedure will save time both for the voter and the examiner. New voters who cannot furnish such certificate must take the New York State Regents Literacy Test.

An amendment voted by the 1936 Legislature provides that the certificate of literacy, when issued, shall be in duplicate. One copy may be retained by the person to whom it is issued and the other by the election inspectors to be transmitted to the board of elections for the county. This amendment will provide a check for election inspectors to see that the same person who took the literacy test signs the registration book.

Pursuant to the rules of the Board of Regents, the literacy test for the city of Kingston will be given at the high school and at the Myron J. Michael School on the following dates by Principal Frank L. Meagher:

High school, Broadway, October 13, 7 p. m. to 9 p. m.

Myron J. Michael School, Andrew street, October 14 and 21, 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

High school, Broadway, October 14 and 21, 4 p. m. to 10 p. m.

High school, Broadway, October 15, 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

High school, Broadway, October 22, 7 a. m. to 10 p. m.

New voters are urged to take this test at the earliest possible date.

B. C. VAN INGEN,
Superintendent of Schools.
Kingston, N. Y., Oct. 6, 1938.

Balloons Get Loose

London, Oct. 8 (AP)—Two balloons, raised in demonstration of London's air raid defense barrage, broke loose today and sailed across country, trailing their long steel cables. Several score other silver-sided gas bags dotted London's sky to show how the defense ministry proposed to keep enemy aircraft at a distance. Several other balloons slipped their cables but were captured promptly.

Captain Koehl Dies

Escaped Convict Recaptured

He stands between Sheriff Raymond Bowers (left) and Deputy "Doc" Zimmerman, with the sub-machine gun. Goodwin, for whose affections the jailer's daughter, Lula Belle Kimel, said she aided the escape, was wounded resisting arrest.

Miller Would Get Cash From Joint Account With Wife

Ellenville Man Brings Unusual Case Before Special Term of Court Yesterday; Deposit Is $2,027.93

William Miller of Ellenville asked Justice Schirick in supreme court yesterday to direct an order to the New Paltz Bank which would release to him a deposit of $2,027.93 which is now on deposit in the bank there in the joint names of William Miller and Retta R. Miller, his wife. The action was an unusual one.

Mr. Miller on the stand testified that he and his wife were no longer living together and that he did not know where she was. Daughters of the woman refused to tell him where she was but he believes she was somewhere about the Kerhonkson country for a time but now was reported to be in Pennsylvania. Because of the fact that she could not be served personally in the matter the service was made through publication.

Miller said he was unable to get a penny of the money which he had saved prior to his marriage to his wife on March 6, 1936, at Ellenville. None of the money had been earned by her and he told the court she left him shortly after the marriage and took the bank book with her.

When they were married he had on deposit $2,067.60 in the bank in his name. After the marriage she "nagged" him, he said, until he had the money placed in a joint account. She told him if anything happened to him she would be left penniless and he consented to the joint account, and such an account was joined on September 28, 1937. After the account was changed, he said, she left him and took the bank book with her. At the bank he was told she had left instructions not to pay him any money from the account. A small sum has been drawn by the wife since.

The court was told that during the time efforts were being made to locate Mrs. Miller an offer had been made counsel to "divide up" the money but it had been refused. Benjamin Lonstein, who appeared for Miller, said considerable time had been spent by constables attempting to locate Mrs. Miller so she might be served in the action but service by publication was resorted to.

To Recall Troops

Rome, Oct. 8 (AP)—The government announced today that Italian troops with more than 18 months' service in Spain would be recalled to Italy.

Cardinal's Talk Irks Nazi Groups in Vienna

Vienna, Oct. 8 (AP)—A hostile demonstration involving youths who had heard Theodore Cardinal Innitzer preach a stirring sermon and customers of a Nazi-frequented cafe created a disturbed atmosphere here today.

Police were summoned after blows had been exchanged by members of small groups and some arrests were made.

Nazis shouted "to Dachau (a notorious German concentration camp) with Innitzer!"

The near-riot occurred about midnight following a big Catholic demonstration, the first since the union of Austria and Germany on March 13.

The cardinal, in the address, said the church had been robbed of many things in the past months, including its organizations and banners, but had also gained a better appreciation of the value of community spirit.

He exhorted his listeners to "preserve faith, and give outward testimony thereof, difficult though that may be, for it is not enough to carry faith only within the heart."

Voting Deferred On School Issue

Taxpayers from the school districts of Marbletown and from districts 1 and 5 in Rosendale, after discussing a school-centralization proposal at High Falls yesterday, decided to adjourn until October 14 for a vote on the question.

The group voted 192 to 177 in favor of adjournment after many at the meeting requested more information on the proposal.

An application for a federal grant of $130,500 has been made to aid in defraying the cost of the project. The taxpayers will vote on the question of whether or not to raise a bond issue locally to cover their share in building the school.

J. Ellis Briggs was elected chairman and Mark Bryant secretary at the meeting. Mrs. Eugene Galvin, Mrs. Chase, LeRoy Krom and Chester Roosa were tellers.

Prophet's Proverb Does Not Apply to Nazi Leader, Who Is Idolized by Many Folk

Berlin, Oct. 8 (AP)—The proverb that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country doesn't apply to Nazi Leader Hitler.

At this moment fresh from his triumph in the Czechoslovak crisis he is riding the crest of a wave of German adulation that in many instances closely approaches worship.

This in itself is a partial answer to the oft repeated query in America and other countries as to whether Hitler has imposed himself and Nazilsm on an unwilling people who are only awaiting an opportunity to escape.

Nazidom has its opponents—some of them representing powerful interests—in the Fatherland. And there are some things which the public as a whole doesn't like and protests.

But broadly speaking Hitler is the idol of the masses. Right now he is sitting as solidly on the top of the Nazi structure which he has built as though he were perched on the Rock of Gibraltar.

That is the way matters stand and they may so continue indefinitely but close observers say there are several things against which he must safeguard his political structure if he is to ensure its permanence.

The most important of these are four:

First—An exceedingly difficult economic situation which must be righted if it is not to blow up in the government's face.

Second—The urge of the intellectual section of the population for democracy or at least for intellectual self determination.

Third—The repression which has been applied to churches both Catholic and Protestant.

Fourth — The government's anti-Semitic campaign which has had an international repercussion that has adversely affected not only Germany's relations with some other countries but her economic position.

A bird's eye view of the surface gives the immediate impression that the Fatherland is flourishing like the bay tree. The people as a whole are said to accept their economic position as satisfactory.

Economic experts, however, assert that Germany is mortgaging the future for vast public works and rearmament which cannot be paid for now. They complain that the orthodox rules of finance and economics are being shattered wholesale and that a day of reckoning must come.

The same experts, though, decline to stake their lives that the new order of things won't work in the long run. They shrug their shoulders and admit that countries have even been making war without anything like adequate financial resources.

Political Prisoners Freed By Czechoslovakia, Tiso Named to Discus Magyars

U. S. and Vatican Stir Duce

Phillips Scores Acts Against American Jews

Rome, Oct. 8 (AP)—Italy's international relations were irritated today by American and Vatican concern over new anti-Semitic regulations laid down by the Fascist grand council.

The United States embassy awaited a reply to a note handed to Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano by Ambassador William Phillips, asking whether American Jews are to be given the same consideration Italians get in America.

The note was understood to point out that Italians in the United States are not discriminated against for reasons of race or religion.

About 200 American Jews are threatened with expulsion from Italy under the council's regulations affecting foreign Jews. Many have applied to the embassy for help or information.

The Vatican was concerned over Fascism's ban on marriages between Italians and persons of "non-aryan or alien races." Approval was withheld until Vatican authorities saw how the ban would work.

Under the 1929 concordat the Italian government pledged itself to recognize as legal the sacrament of marriage performed according to canon law.

Meanwhile, Italians looked to tonight's session of the council for some definite word on the progress of British-Italian talks and the improvement of French-Italian relations.

There has been no official declaration on French relations, but hostility toward France has slackened noticeably in the Italian press.

As for British-Italian relations hopes were raised by continued talks between the Earl of Perth, British Ambassador to Rome, and Ciano that a way would be found to place into effect the suspended friendship accord signed April 16.

The Fascist council early today decreed abolition of the Italian Chamber of Deputies and establishment of a new chamber of Fasces and Guilds to take its place.

Hungary Protests Activities Along Frontier, Charges 'Terror' Increases in Minority Districts

Nazis Advance

Military Push Into Sudeten Areas Due for Occupation on October 10

(By The Associated Press)

In Prague today the Czechoslovak government took quick steps toward international pacification by granting amnesty to Hungarian, Sudeten German and political prisoners and by naming Dr. Joseph Tiso to negotiate with Hungary on her claims to Magyar minorities within dismembered Czechoslovakia.

Swiftly cementing the state's new federal status, with Czech and Slovak equality, Dr. Tiso, prime minister of the autonomous Slovak state and his colleagues were sworn in at a cabinet meeting.

This was the single hopeful note as the disintegration of Czechoslovakia continued. There was pessimism in Prague but Slovakia celebrated despite the fact that in its natural capital, Bratislava, two Hungarian deputies demanded immediate negotiations for the transfer of extensive portions of Slovakia to Hungary. The three months' period specified in the four-power Munich agreement October 1 for settling the issues of Polish and Hungarian minorities was considered too long to suit the Hungarian legislators.

Despite uncertainties facing the country, Dr. Tiso and other Slovak leaders expressed a desire Slovakia be an autonomous part of the new Czechoslovakia and pledged cooperation with the Prague government.

Hungary, however, protested to Prague against continued Czechoslovak measures along the Hungarian-Czechoslovak frontier and charged "terror" had increased in Hungarian minority districts.

The German military advance into remaining Sudetenland districts to be occupied by October 10, meanwhile, continued deeper into the broad rim of Czechoslovakia.

In Paris, French Communists sought to reform the shattered People's Front on a broader basis in an attempt to overthrow Premier Edouard Daladier's government because of the Munich accord and to prevent a possibility of French recognition of insurgent Spain.

British Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald and Sir Harold MacMichael, high commissioner for Palestine, continued their urgent attempts to find means of stopping the Arab rebellion in the Holy Land.

Jews were adamant against any plan to close Palestine to Jewish immigration and, in Cairo, Aly Alloubi Pasha, chairman of the Egyptian Parliamentary Committee, condemned the British proposal to partition the country.

In Spain, insurgent dispatches reported capture of an important mountain range in lower Catalonia but a week's fighting, although bitter, has been local and indecisive.

Japan took two long strides towards her goal, Hankow, China's provisional capital this week. Her forces cut the Peiping-Hankow railroad, a vital artery north of Hankow, and pushed to within 30 miles east of the capital up the Yangtze river.

Moravska Begins Slow Decline Due To Mutilation

Once-Booming Industrial City of Czechoslovakia Suffers Through Aggression by Germans and Poles

Moravska Ostrava, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 8 (AP)—This industrial city, known as the "heart of northern Moravia," has begun a slow decline since the dismemberment Czechoslovakia.

Germany has seized strategic territory to the west, cutting rail and highway connections between here and Prague, and Polish troops have moved into territory to the east.

As a result of the German occupation, this district has lost one of the largest electric plants in Czechoslovakia at Prebovice, a state broadcasting station at Svinov, a majority of the coal mines of northern Moravia, chalk and limestone quarries, cement works and scores of manufacturing plants.

Because of the Polish occupation, the district has lost additional coal mines, rich iron ore territory and manufacturing plants estimated by Czechoslovak officials to include about 70 per cent of the total in this region.

Travelers going from here to Prague by the main rail line are forced to cross German territory twice, while German territory cuts the Prague highway in at least three places.

To avoid the German areas, residents of this district wishing to go to the capital have to travel far to the south and then east, adding three hours to the normal six-hour journey.

In the Moravski Ostrava region business men complained bitterly of German and Polish occupation of towns said to be almost 100 per cent Czech. They cited the towns of Pribor and Koprivince which were occupied by the Germans yesterday, asserting there were less than 1,000 Germans in these towns out of a total population of about 20,000.

"German and Polish occupation has taken three per cent of the almost pure Czech territory in this region," a spokesman for the business men said.

"It means the end of our industrial life. Destruction of the political structure is small compared to the hardship we are forced to endure because of this hostile economic pressure from two sides."

One of the largest iron foundries of Czechoslovakia, owned by the Rothschild interests, finds its plants in the territory of all three nations. The foundry is producing armor plates for the British government but it is doubtful it will be able to continue operations subject to the regulations of three countries.

Almost 10,000 refugees from the Polish region are being cared for in Czech villages in the Moravska Ostrava area. Some told of being attacked during the night with machine-guns, hand grenades and homemade bombs before they fled from their homes.

Railroad Help Gains

Washington, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission said today that class 1 railroads employed 861,868 persons during September, an increase of 2.41 per cent over August but a decrease of 15-1 per cent compared with September, 1937. The commission reported 11,819 executives were employed in September, a decrease of .18 per cent from the August total.

Schirick Receives Applications for 3 Land Appraisers

Kaufman and Walton Request the Appointment of 'Hard-headed' Farmer to Give True Values in County

Application for appointment of three commissioners of appraisal to hear claims arising out of the taking of lands by the city of New York for water works purposes in the Lackawack section of Ulster county was made to Justice Schirick at special term Friday. Henry R. Bright and John E. Egan appeared for the city and Senator Charles W. Walton and George F. Kaufman and Thomas Plunkett appeared for numerous claimants.

There was no objection to the application for commissioners of appraisal but Senator Walton said he appeared for the Ellenville Electric Light Co., Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. and the New York Telephone Co. and those corporations hold that the city was not to acquire any property rights or easement privileges which the corporation owned. Mr. Bright said the city did not seek to take over any such franchise rights.

On behalf of several claimants Mr. Walton and Surrogate George F. Kaufman asked the court to consider the appointment of at least one good "hard-headed" practical farmer who would know farm values. The region was mostly farming section and they held city people could not properly appraise values. The boarding house section, Mr. Walton said, should be represented by a man who knew values of that business and he also urged that the commissioners be appointed in time so they might view the property before winter sets in and snow covers the lands and make it impossible to properly appraise the lands.

The application was made by the city for commissioners to hear claims in Section 7, that is the locality between the Leiberman farm just above the Evans garage at Lackawack and the Sullivan county line.

Application is being made Saturday for a commission to hear claims in Section 8, which is the property from the county line farm to the Reformed Church above at the limit of the reservoir taking.

Justice Schirick will name the commissioners for Section 7 shortly.

Settlement in Cole Case

Elizabethtown, N. Y., Oct. 8 (AP) A settlement has ended a $113,259 automobile accident negligence suit against former Deputy State Tax Commissioner Seth T. Cole, of Catskill, in State Supreme Court here. The settlement was reported after eight members of a jury had been drawn. The terms were not made public. The suit arose from a collision near Lake Placid last June 5 in which Henry Warren, Schroon Lake contractor and builder, was killed, and four other persons, including Cole, were seriously injured.

TOWNSEND PLAN NEWS

No. 30

It was refreshing news this week to read in a half column article, with big headlines, in the New York Herald-Tribune that the Republican party in Massachusetts gladly welcomes the endorsement of W. H. McMasters, (the defeated Townsendite candidate for Republican nomination for Governor) with his 46,000 votes, for Leverett Saltonstall, the successful Republican nominee, who promised, if elected, to give his hearty endorsement of the Townsend Plan bill in the 1939 Congress. U. S. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, is also warmly supporting the Townsend bill. Political leaders now see clearly the way the tide is moving, and they do not want to be caught in the ebb tide! New York state has about 100,000 Townsend voters. Political leaders cannot afford to ignore or despise them any longer.

A Special Announcement

The Fall Rummage Sale of the Kingston Townsend Club will be held next Monday and Tuesday, October 10 and 11, at 556 Broadway, near Railroad av

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 8 (AP).—Selected stocks again bounced to new tops the past year in today's market as continued high business hopes and lessening of foreign worries stimulated buyers.

Week-end profit taking cut down extreme gains of fractions to more than 2 points in some instances at the close.

Demand for steels, rails and a wide assortment of specialties kept the ticker tape moving at a fairly fast gait. Transfers for the two hours amounted to around 1,000,000 shares.

Expanding tonnage from the automobile makers was seen as a buoying factor in production of the metal. U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Youngstown were well in front of the forward jaunt.

Carriers drew support from the brisk increase in freight loadings and the belief of a few that the rail wage dispute may be adjusted amicably. Santa Fe, Southern Railway, N. Y. Central and Southern Pacific were prominent on the advance.

Sugar stocks, quiet lately, came to life as refiners lifted the price of granulated from 4.60 to 4.75 cents a pound.

Kennecott, American Smelting and Cerro de Pasco piloted the coppers to better levels on talk of another lift in the domestic price of the red metal.

General Motors and Chrysler tacked on moderate gains despite labor difficulties at the latter's Plymouth plant. General Motors reported September sales less than half of the corresponding month the year before. The changeover to new models, however, was thought to have caused part of the drop.

Standard Oil of N. J., and Texas Corp. were backward as weakness appeared in mid-continent wholesale gasoline rates.

Popular were Westinghouse, Philip Morris, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, J. I. Case, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, American Radiator and du Pont.

Bonds followed stocks with selective improvement. Commodities were mixed. Cotton futures clipped on the government's estimate of a larger crop than had been expected. Gains were narrow.

Fire Prevention Week will be observed in Kingston next week, in connection with the general observance throughout the country.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said this morning that the fire department planned to have a series of fire drills in all of the schools in the city as a part of the observance.

The fire department also plans to pay special attention to bulk oil storage plants, of which there are a number located along the Rondout creek front.

The fire chief today urged householders to make an inspection of their heating plants, such as chimneys to check up on any fire hazard that might exist and to remedy it if found.

The Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association is also cooperating in the observance of the week by sponsoring an essay contest for the 7th and 8th grade pupils in the public schools and parochial schools in Kingston and Ulster county. The subject to be discussed is "Fire Prevention in the Home" and essays are limited to not more than 150 words and must be written in ink. The principal of each school will select the three best papers in each school and forward them to Chief Murphy who will turn them over to the judges. October 14 is the final date set for the submission of the essays.

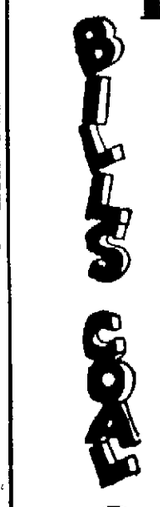
WERE YOUR COAL BILLS TOO HIGH LAST WINTER?



You would be surprised at the amount of money you can waste in an under-sized, inefficient heating system in one winter. And generally a heating system that wastes fuel does not give sufficient heat when extremely cold weather comes around.

We know the causes of excessive fuel consumption. And we know how to remedy them. Ordinarily the cost of modernizing your system is paid for in a few years by savings in fuel. Frequently, we are able to show home owners why a new, modern Sunbeam Warm-Air Heating System is not an expensive luxury but a downright economy. When you consider that a new Sunbeam will always give you all the heat you want—clean heat, healthful heat—with very little attention and will burn less coal, you should ask us for a cost estimate. There is no obligation and time payment terms can be arranged. Let us talk it over with you today.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, OCTOBER 8, 1938.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. 3

This amendment in relation to the elimination of grade crossings will be of special interest to residents, since its adoption may mean that the city of Kingston's plan now before the State Public Service Commission calling for the elimination of all crossings here will go into effect. The amendment speeds up eliminations by postponing division of costs until after a project is completed, then cutting the railroad's share from fifty per cent to not more than fifteen.

If the amendment is adopted it probably will facilitate the chances for a successful conclusion of this city's efforts to remove the grade crossings because it will remove the objections raised by the railroad to the city's plans. The railroad has raised objections to the elimination of the Broadway crossing by depressing the tracks under the street, declaring the cost excessive and insufficient funds to carry out the project. With the adoption of this amendment providing that the entire cost of elimination shall be borne by the state, the question of cost is wiped out.

The amendment represents a compromise between those who believed that the only way to get action on elimination of dangerous crossings at grade was to let the railroads off scotfree, and those who believed the railroads' share should not be reduced. All the delegates agreed there was a crying need for elimination of present crossing hazards. There was almost general agreement that due to the present financial plight of the railroads projects would continue to be blocked indefinitely by the roads unless the terms were changed.

The amendment provides that the division of costs shall not be made until after a project has been completed, so projects shall not be tied up indefinitely, as at present, by jockeying over how the bill shall be split. The state will pay the whole cost in the first instance. Afterward it will collect from the railroads the entire cost of railroad improvements not essential to the elimination and the net benefit to the road not to exceed 15 per cent of the net cost of the project.

The amendment applies to all projects started after January 1 next. It does not create any new grade crossing bond issue. It applies only to the unexpended balance of the $300,000,000 authorized in 1925, amounting to $170,000,000. The amendment allocates $50,000,000 of this to New York city, including the $36,000,000 heretofore allocated under present law.

ANTI-TRUST ENFORCEMENT

Alsop and Kitner, in their syndicated column of news comment, have been having a little fun with Thurman W. Arnold, author of "The Folklore of Capitalism," in his present capacity as assistant attorney-general and trust-buster. He is a new type in our public life and seems to lend himself readily to entertainment.

But they conclude that his odd schemes and whimsicalities shouldn't obscure his value as a public servant—that he is trying to put over the best joke he can think of, "enforcement of the anti-trust laws for the first time in American history."

They credit that bit of practical humor with a chance of success, for a surprising reason. Although he is upsetting to some industries, they say, "he gets along very well with industrialists." That is, apparently, because he is frank with them. He tells them he wants to enforce the law, and also tells them exactly what the law is, so that they can work the problem out together.

It appears that a big majority of business men really want to observe the law, and will do so if they understand it clearly.

ESSENTIAL COMMUNITY FUND

A by-product of government provision for the care of the aged is the release of certain community chest funds for additional work in behalf of children. This was discovered in a detailed analysis of 81 community chests. As the different fund campaigns get under way this fall, the sponsors should stress this change and point out the fact that government assistance in certain fields of social welfare is small in view of the whole problem, and that such projects still have a vital part in welfare work.

Dr. George E. Vincent, honorary president of Community Chests and Councils, Inc., commented on the situation the other day. "Flexibility in budgeting enables community chests to meet changing situations," he said. "It is gratifying that, although funds raised by community chests are relatively small compared with government expenditures, these voluntary gifts are apparently being adjusted to government expenditures and are being spent where they are needed most."

Much of the great human value of this device lies in its system of voluntary giving, community cooperation and popular education in regard to a community's social needs.

"Are we fair-minded?" asks the leader of a conference group. Of course we are! But my gosh—just listen to those other fellows!

BLEEDING THE PATIENT

Years ago we were inclined to smile when we read the stories of the medical men of the savage African natives who boiled human organs and used this liquid in the treatment of disease. Today extracts of organs——thyroid, pancreas, stomach, intestine, pituitary and others—are used regularly by many physicians.

Many years ago regular physicians used to bleed their patients for various ailments but the bleeding of patients has been abolished by the medical profession. However as many healthy individuals now give up blood regularly for patients with anaemia, or after operation or a severe illness, research physicians decided to investigate the health of these blood givers (donors.)

Dr. F. Cadham, Winnipeg, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal states that following the 1936 epidemic of infantile paralysis in Manitoba, convalescent serum for the treatment of the disease was prepared in the government laboratory. This serum is made from the blood of those who have recovered from the disease. Each of the 125 blood donors was asked to return at intervals and each time about 2 to 5 ounces of blood was withdrawn. Fifty of the 125 donors supplied blood six or more times, at an interval of one week.

An investigation of the physical condition of donors six months later showed no ill effects. Forty-seven of the fifty donors said they were improved in health; even those who were apparently in good health remarked of a feeling of well-being. Sixty-five of the donors experienced improvement in appetite and seven noted a clearer and healthier tone of the skin. Three who had suffered with acne (pimples) found that the acne had disappeared. Seventy-two of the donors increased in weight (3 to 15 pounds.)

Of 200 blood donors who had not had infantile paralysis, that is normal healthy individuals from whom 2 to 3 ounces of blood was withdrawn over a period of from six to ten days, none suffered any ill effects and the majority were realy benefitted by the giving up of this blood.

Just why the removal of these small quantities of blood benefit the donor is not clear, but Dr. Cadham states: "Evidently under certain circumstances the withdrawal of small amounts of blood at regular intervals may prove of value in treatment."

It would seem then that physicians of former times really knew that 'bleeding' was of value in the treatment of disease.

Don't Marry the Man

By JEANNE BOWMAN

The Characters

Kathleen Gregory: red-haired member of the Gregory clan, goes West incognito to get a right-of-way from MacDonald for The Golden Girl mine.

Donald MacDonald: young owner of the rival mine, The Stubborn Boy, instantly quarrels with Kathleen.

Bridget: Kathleen's companion.

Yesterday: Kathleen learns that Old Balmy, a Gregory shift boss, is the only one in Neutrality who disregards the feud between the Gregorys and MacDonalds.

Chapter Nine

Into The Mine

BRIDGET was standing before The Gregory House, talking to a large, sandy-haired man whom Kathleen disliked instantly.

"Mr. Kit-Smyth, superintendent of the Gregory mine," Bridget said in presenting him. "I've been talking to him about renting the old Gregory place. It seems that's the only house available, furnished or unfurnished."

"I believe I'll be able to intercede with the owners," explained Kit-Smyth, smiling at Kathleen. "They've allowed me to rent it before."

Kathleen controlled her eyebrows which sought to shoot up in surprise at a Gregory renting any personal possession, regardless of how little they cared for it.

"Of course we couldn't pay the seventy-five a month, previously paid," Bridget continued. "However, Mr. Kit-Smyth said the owners would consider less."

"Could we move in immediately?" Kathleen hastened to ask.

Kit-Smyth pleated his upper lip with thumb and forefinger, then reached for his watch. "Hmmm, eleven o'clock here, one o'clock in New York. If I wire immediately I should have the answer back by late afternoon. Yes, I believe you can. I'll send my houseboy up to help you air out and fire up. In the meantime, why don't you young ladies lunch with me? And I'll take you down in the mine, would you enjoy that?"

Kathleen and Bridget gave eager assent, then hurried to the hotel.

"It's too pat," Bridget protested as they reached their room. "It doesn't seem right that things should work into our hands like this."

"Pat!" blurted Kathleen. "Donald is his name and he certainly isn't working into my hands. I've had another row with him. He's impossible. Let's talk about Kit-Smyth, what did you think of him?"

"Mind if I reserve judgment?" asked Bridget. "I don't like to depend upon first impressions."

"Well I do," snapped Kathleen. "I've noticed that," laughed Bridget, getting into a warm blue knit dress which turned her eyes to twin bits of mountain sky.

Kathleen, turning to Bridget Riley, ex-secretary of Angus Gregory, President of The Golden Girl, incorporated, in her place, checked herself. Bridget had grown beautiful. It was as though some dormant radiance had been awakened, intensifying each charming feature. No wonder Donald MacDonald had been fascinated.

"You've had a second impression of MacDonald, how did you like him?" she questioned, abruptly.

Bridget's eyes twinkled. "Having lived with you for three weeks, I understand him perfectly. You two are very much alike you know—"

"Alike!" exploded Kathleen.

"Yes, both autocrats, charming to your friends and dependents, but if you'll pardon the phrase, hell on your enemies."

Terrifying Speed

"BRIDGET DONAHUE RILEY, no one has ever dared talk to me the way you do. I don't know how or why I take it."

"I do." Bridget swung a cape over her shoulders. "It's because you're inherently honest. Down under all of that quartz there's a ledge of pure gold in you. I've been talking to Kit-Smyth. I'm all a quiver with mineralogy.

"Come on, darling, I doubt if the Crown Prince of The Golden Girl is accustomed to being kept waiting."

"Crown Prince," chuckled Kathleen, "and you said you didn't judge by first impressions."

The road to The Golden Girl forked off the highway below Neutrality, then wound down on the other side until it came out at a point nearly below the cliff which held the house she had come to call The House of Hate.

Kathleen's first view of the mine brought with it renewed faith in the Gregorys. The great gray sheds, the towering derricks, the railroad siding with its train of ore cars, all bespoke care, upkeep and bustling activity.

"The ore," Kit-Smyth told them, "is going down to the smelter. We do only the mining here."

The superintendent was proud of his domain. Each building glistened with fresh paint. The laboratory was, he said, one of the best in the business, the emergency hospital one of the most efficient and most seldom used.

"We might as well go down now," he ventured.

From a wardrobe room he brought forth yellow slickers and yellow hats resembling sou'westers, and when the girls had donned these, led them to the collar of the mine, a great gaping hole which seemed filled with a rushing, roaring noise.

"The skip," he explained. "Elevators to you. They are evidently passing in the shaft."

As he spoke, one shot up towards them at such a speed that Kathleen stepped back.

It looked like a mammoth express elevator to Kathleen and seemed to stop on two levels. The lower opened onto a chute on the opposite side. Ore cars were rolled out to release their burden to the waiting freight car below.

Thet upper cage opened towards them and two men in leather coats and miners' cups stepped out.

"Muckers, probably going to the commissary," Kit-Smyth explained, and ushered the girls into the compartment.

"Better take my arm on this first trip," he suggested.

Bridget complied, but Kathleen set her heels sturdily. This was her mine. She'd let no cage destroy her morale.

And then the earth gave way and with it daylight. Down they shot at a terrifying speed. Black walls gave way to splashes of light at regular intervals.

"Stations," elucidated Kit-Smyth. "Every hundred feet. Pump stations. You know we must keep pumping constantly to keep the drifts from flooding."

'Angus!'

KATHLEEN might have counted twenty-five stations had she been concerned with anything other than keeping her breath in its accustomed place. She knew she was suffocating. She wanted, terribly, to reach out for the assurance of Kit-Smyth's arm, something more human than the iron bar she clutched.

She had one moment of paralyzing fear as she visualized the walls of the shaft caving in, imprisoning them, cutting off the sky and the sunlight . . . but principally the air . . . for all time.

"Air—" she ventured. "How does one—"

"Pumps again," answered the superintendent. "I'll show you the winch when we go top-side again. Air must be forced through at a terrific pressure to break the damp air; the foul air. It's poisonous."

Kathleen offered a prayer that nothing would happen to the pumps until she reached the surface again.

"Relax," ordered Kit-Smyth.

Kathleen promptly stiffened and knew that her heels had come up through her ankles. She found the cage had stopped with devastating abruptness.

For a moment she waited, looking ahead. Surely this was something Milton had dreamed about when he wrote "Paradise Lost." This queer low dark tunnel with its dots of yellow light, gleaming fantastically along the floor. The dots she learned were electric lights; the gleam, the tracks along which ran the ore cradles.

Again she refused Kit-Smyth's arm and stumbled along in his wake. The men were lunching in the tunnel just off the "stope."

Kathleen noticed now that the walls and ceiling were heavily timbered. This gave her some assurance of safety until she realized how deep in the earth they were and how many tons of rock lay above them.

And then they came into what Kit-Smyth called a "kidney" and she felt better. This was an oval opening, the ceiling lost in darkness, the floor piled with muck. At the tunnel end the muckers sat hunched over tin buckets, one a little apart from the rest of the shift.

Kit-Smyth had said they were working this spot and Kathleen forgot everything else. Scarcely aware of the silent audience she moved close to a wall and scanned it closely. Without a light playing on it, it looked like nothing at all.

So this was a gold mine! The Golden Girl, the mine whose name had been bestowed upon her. Where was the gold?

Hands clasped behind her back, heels planted sturdily, she stood thinking of what Bridget had said. Wanting to laugh at the visions she had previously had, of a great glowing cave and miners chipping the gold off the walls in rocks.

And then she stiffened in alarm.

"Angus!" The man who had sat apart was on his feet; was coming towards her, ripping off his cap with one hand, the other outstretched. "Oh, Angus, I knew you'd come. I've been praying—"

With one swift motion Kathleen ripped off the rubber hat and her curls caught the gleam of a lamp; revealed the femininity of her face.

"Balmy!" Kit-Smyth's voice rang out in warning.

West Shokan, Oct. 7—The West Shokan school had a 96 percent attendance record for September. The following were neither absent nor tardy during the month: Dorothy Dwyer, Dorothy Eckert, Helen Harrison, Sarah Roe, Margaret Wagner, Charles Harrison, Warren Hyde, Harry North, Arthur Smith, Joseph Wagner, William Wagner. Honor roll members were Margaret Wagner and Arthur Smith. The name of Margaret Wagner was recorded for having set forth "best efforts" for the month. Health roll members who qualified for the month of September were Arthur Smith, Harry North and Anna May Wagner.

The pupils and teacher were surprised, on returning to school to find that a new hot water system had been installed. A rhythm band is being organized by Mr. Drescher and they hope soon to have a concert.

The visual equipment has already arrived. Margaret Wagner was placed in charge.

Walter left New York on August 31 for the Hawaiian Islands. The letter was written just after passing through the Panama Canal and posted at Angel Island, off the coast of California.

Maxwell Ludtke left for Weehawken the last of the month. Also Miss Florence Eckert has moved from the district.

Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Notes on war:

Did you know that a plane could drop tons of bombs on London without passing over the city? It could.

When a bomber "lines up" on its target, it may be traveling 250 miles an hour. With a tail-wind it might be doing 300 or more. Under such conditions a plane 30,000 feet in the air must release its bomb as many as 5 miles before it gets over the target. At the moment of release, the bomb is traveling at the same speed as the plane. It continues its forward flight while it is descending, following a long, downward curve from the time it leaves the plane until it strikes.

That means that if enemy planes were flying to bomb London, they would have to be shot down three to five miles before they reached the city. Otherwise their bombs would already be on the way down and the planes might have turned back for home without ever having passed over the city.

* * *

Bomb After Bomb

EVERY soldier with a grain of air knowledge knows London could be bombed over and over again in spite of the best defense now available. Planes sweeping in from the North Sea could be over London before counter-attacking planes could get up to fight them.

Shells from modern anti-aircraft guns could reach these planes before they are in position to drop their bombs, even though they may do it five miles out. American three-inch anti-aircraft guns have a vertical range of 30,000 feet, roughly six miles. The range is much greater if the gun is fired at an angle instead of straight up.

But hitting a plane at five miles is a feat. An exploding anti-aircraft shell will spray fragments over a zone as large as a football field. Getting the shell to explode when a plane is in that zone is something else again, but it can be done.

But, on the other hand, it's difficult for a plane four miles up and five miles out to drop a bomb on a specific spot. Even a slight miscalculation of wind direction might make the bomb miss its target a half mile.

Every Londoner knows that a bomb that fails to hit Buckingham palace, a warehouse, or a rail terminal, may land amidst dense throngs in Piccadilly, Soho or Kensington. Although military men doubt that a hard pressed army would waste bombs on civilian populations, a swarm of planes bombing "legitimate" military objectives might be expected to spill many a projectile into teeming London streets. Now you begin to understand the why of gas masks and splinter trenches.

* * *

A Deadly New Wrinkle

DURING the Spanish civil war, Barcelona has been bombed without ever hearing or seeing the planes that did it. . . . A Franco airplane recently skimmed into Barcelona harbor, touched the water long enough to start a torpedo squirming through the waves toward a British freighter, then skimmed over the deck of the doomed ship a moment before the torpedo struck. . . . The ship went down in three minutes. . . . That is something new to think about in warfare. . . . One thing Hitler no doubt realizes, that this time Turkey is friendly toward Britain, which opens the Dardanelles to allow a backdoor attack on Germany.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Carl Erbe leaves shortly on one of the few remaining trips of interest which haven't been exhausted by tourists and travelers. This is the "inland passage" from New York to Florida, and he sets out October 15 with two companions in a 60 foot auxiliary sailing yacht.

The trip south will require about three weeks, and on it they will explore little-known bays and coves, threading their way through a maze of small islands so little peopled that electricity is non-existent and the natives, a rural folk who live chiefly by fishing and trapping, still use kerosene lamps.

Erbe's departure this year is a little earlier than usual. He goes south in leisurely fashion, but once there his work will be cut out for him, because he handles Jack Dempsey's Miami restaurant as well as the Patio and Colony clubs.

* * *

THIS means here that the Riviera, Ben Marden's place on the Palisades, is closed and deserted now save for a ground crew and workmen who are putting in new equipment. The entire crew, from waiters and bartenders to chefs, and even Marden's private barber, are on their way south to open the Florida clubs. It's an annual custom with Marden to take his staffs south. Half the year they work in an atmosphere of waving palms and soft sea breezes; the remaining months they are stationed in New York.

* * *

THE route they'll take reads like a Rand-McNally map salesman talking choctaw. . . . They'll go "outside" around Sandy Hook and into Cape May, and from there the trail leads through the Delaware river, the Delaware and Chesapeake canals and on to Norfolk. At the Virginia port they go "inside" again through the Albemarle river and through Currituck Sound, the Alleghany river and Albemarle sound.

From the sound they follow the Pungo River canal and the Neus river, leaving that stream eventually for Vogue sound, after which they come to Indian river. They follow the Indian all the way to Miami.

It'll be quite a trip. They'll make it in a leisurely fashion. No hurry, of course. Long days of lazing in the sun, when there isn't work to be done, salt air and plenty of good wholesome grub.

It sounds like a swell jaunt. They asked me if I wanted to go along, but how can you spend three weeks on a boat tracing the inland passage and write a column about New York?

SOUTH RONDOUT

South Rondout, Oct. 7—A food sale will be held at the home of Mrs. John Wilson under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Auxiliary of the M. E. Church Wednesday, October 12. Orders in advance may be given to any member.

Mrs. Ann Isherwood and daughter, Mrs. Ole Christensen and children, of Rifton, were recent callers at the home of Mrs. Mary Peters.

Mrs. Thomas Morrissey spent Thursday at the home of her sister, Mrs. R. Terpening, who is ill at Sleightsburgh.

Mrs. James Wesley spent Thursday at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley, of Port Ewen.

New Way To Reduce

Washington (AP) — Jacquelin Cochran, the flier, says important flights, such as the Bendix Trophy race, which she just won, are good stream-liners as well as good fun. She usually loses five to ten pounds on each such flight.

For a delicious potato, remove the baked pato from the shell, mash it, season with salt, pepper, butter and cream, and mix it with a bit of crabmeat, shrimp or salmon. Pile it high in the shell, sprinkle with grated cheese, and brown the top in the oven.

Strange But True

"I CAN understand that we seem very queer to you," said Willy Nilly.

"I think your animals were wonderful," said the owner of the house. "After all, they warned us and saved our lives."

"And this little man," said the fire chief, "turned in the alarm."

Now no one laughed. They listened while Willy Nilly continued:

"We do not belong to any circus. We have our own home and we have a good distance to go before we reach it," and the Puddle Muddlers again felt that longing for Puddle Muddle.

"We have been having a vacation—traveling in my automobile and the trailer."

Now the people noticed the car and trailer which Willy Nilly had parked down the street. "We are on our way home.

"As we were approaching your village my crow, whose name is Christopher Columbus Crow, and whom you must admit is an important discoverer, saw smoke coming from your chimney. We thought and acted quickly. It is the only thing to do when danger is near, so we try our best to keep our heads.

"The animals went to warn you. I knew you couldn't sleep through the sounds of their voices," and the little man laughed, but looked lovingly at his animal friends.

"I turned in the alarm. In that way the fire did not get any headway. Christopher Columbus Crow saw it in time."

"You must have some supper!" cried the owner of the house. "You must refresh yourselves before you go on your journey. I know a lot about cars. I'll look yours over in the morning and see that it is in good condition. And I should like to do some special honor to your crow."

The people still thought that they had never seen such a strange collection of visitors—but it was true that they were seeing them and that they had been heroes.

What would have happened if these odd Puddle Muddlers had not first noticed the flames?

Orseck-Schmur Action Brought Before Schirick

Consolidation of an action brought in Sullivan county between Orseck Brothers and Max and Anna Schmur of New York and an action commenced by the Schmurs in New York against the Orseck Brothers was brought before Justice Schirick at special term here Friday.

Elsworth Baker appeared for the Orseck boys and Abraham J. Halprin for the Schmurs.

The dispute arises over a transaction in which the Orsecks and the Schmurs were to form a corporation for the distribution of Gulf products in Sullivan county, where the Orsecks recently acquired a franchise. Prior to that the Orseck boys were distributors in Rockland and adjacent counties and in northern New Jersey.

Mr Baker for the Orseck boys said an agreement was entered into whereby the Schmurs were to put up money and invest in the Monarch Oil Company, the distributing corporation. He charged that the agreement was not kept and that instead of the Orsecks being elected to office and being in control of the business they learned that the Schmurs had become officers. On the other hand the Schmurs claim that after repeated efforts to get the Orseck boys to complete the deal they were compelled to go ahead and complete the corporation and become officers to protect their interests. Orsecks claim the New York people were simply to be investors with their $25,000 investment protected.

There is an action commenced in Sullivan county and also an action in New York. Mr Baker asked a consolidation but was opposed by Halprin, who said the actions cannot be consolidated as they are of a different nature and against different parties. One is a jury action, the other is not.

Mr Baker said there were charges that the Orseck boys had misappropriated money of the corporation. This is denied. He said $7,500 of the money was paid with Mr. Schmur's knowledge for securing of a gasoline station. Grand jury action in Sullivan county, he said, was pending but he denied any larceny charge on the part of his clients. The Orseck boys deny any misappropriation of funds and claim they have had to put up money to hold their franchise because of the present actions at law.

Mr. Baker said $16,000 of the corporation money was tied up in Sullivan county banks, that a receiver had been appointed and he said that a letter written to the district attorney of Sullivan county charging irregularities with the company funds had been responsible. A letter written to the district attorney had been shown about to banks and others before it was received by the Sullivan county prosecuting officer, and Mr. Baker said this had worked hardship on the brothers. The charge of misappropriation of funds was to be investigated by the grand jury but he said his clients were innocent of any wrongdoing with the corporation money.

Mr. Halprin held a fair trial could not be had in Sullivan county and he objected to consolidation of the two actions which he said were of an entirely different nature. Mr. Schmur charges he loaned money to the Orseck boys and was to be repaid on demand. His action in New York is to recover the money loaned.

Decision reserved.

It's alright for a woman to try to hold her youth—but, not when he's doing the driving!

A man rushed into the barber shop.

Man—Gimme a haircut, and make it snappy!

Barber — Certainly, just sit right down here.

Man—Never mind, I'll stand.

Barber—Come, come, why don't you sit down?

Man—I'm sorry, but I'm in a hurry!

Advertising is something which keeps your stock-in-trade from having holidays; it brushes away the cobwebs and dust, smartens shop windows, quickens the knowableness or salespeople and lets in the sunlight.

A wealthy old woman who was very ill sent for her lawyer to make her will:

Woman (weakly) — I wish to explain about the disposition of my property.

Lawyer (sympathetically) — There, there! Don't you worry about it; just leave it to me.

Woman—I suppose I might as well—you'll get it anyway!

Read it or not:

There were 5,784 deaths in steam railroad accidents in the United States during 1937, of which only 36 were passengers. There were 2,044 deaths in grade crossing accidents and 2,727 deaths of trespassers.

This ought to start a flow of ideas:

Boogy—Isn't it strange! My best ideas come to me while I am washing my hands.

Woogy—Say, old man, why don't you take a bath?

We hear much about diet and long life. Is there anything to it? We wonder. A man who had paid especial attention to very old people for a good many years, said most of those he knew, lived chiefly on coffee, fat meat and cornbread. We haven't seen such a menu presented as a lengthener of life. But it does possess two virtues. It is a very cheap diet, and one that would certainly tempt no one to over-eat.

Mother—Sammy, when you divided these seven pieces of candy with your sister, did you give her four?

Sammy—No. mom, I knew they wouldn't come out even, so I ate one before I began to divide!

A minister walking a highway met a motorist at the side of the road, trying to remove a punctured tire. He had jerked up the car, removed the hub nuts and was tugging and kicking at the wheel, which stuck as though welded to the axle. Between jerks he would swear viciously at the offending object. "my friend, my friend," the minister chided, "you aren't helping any by using such language. It does not do any good to swear. You would do much better to pray." The motorist looked at him, rose from his position, and challenged: "All right, let's see you get it off by praying!" The minister, taken back, tried to think himself out of the dilemma, but the wicked eyes of the angry motorist gave him no quarter. So he knelt beside the wheel, placed his hands on it, uttered a prayer, and gave a pull. The wheel slipped into his lap. His eyes popped at it, he glared into the face of the, astonished motorist and exclaimed: "Well I'll be dammed!"

Married men never realize the worth of a good woman until they try to put the baby to sleep!

Harry—It's wonderful what some insects can do. A grasshopper can jump 200 times its own length.

Jerry—That's nothing. I once saw a wasp raise a 200-pound man three feet off the ground!

'Sa Hard Life

I skim the "money" off my coffee cup
And rub my hand on wood when-e'er it itches,
But greatly fear I'll have to work for them
If ever I am gonna have great riches.

Blondine—Did you go to the circus?

Brunetta—Yes, and I am certainly glad of it.

Blondine—Why?

Brunetta—Because ever since I saw the hippopotamus I have been better satisfied with my own shape.

A generation ago farm tractors were used almost exclusively for draw-bar and belt work, and worked on the average only 150 to 200 hours a year. Nowadays, according to W. M. Hurst, of the Bureau of Agricultural Engineering, a work year of from 500 to 750 hours is common, and introduction of rubber tires to put tractors on the highways as well as in the fields is likely to increase the number of hours of service that farmers get from this equipment.

Dederick as "Lot No. 2" and more particularly described and bounded as follows, to wit: Beginning at the northeast corner of the lands now or formerly belonging to Francis Hanraty at the point where the easterly bounds of said Hanraty land intersects with the road leading to Kingston Point (now called Delaware Avenue) and runs from thence along the southerly side of said road or avenue easterly one hundred (100) feet, thence southerly at a right angle with the last mentioned line, and along the west side of Jarrold Street one hundred (100) feet, thence westerly and parallel to said Delaware Avenue one hundred (100) feet, thence northerly along Hanratty's line one hundred (100) feet to the place of beginning. Said lot being one hundred feet square. And being the same premises as was conveyed to the party of the first part by Joseph Volk Sr. by deed dated March 12th, 1906, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office in Book of Deeds No. 393 at page 321.

Railroad Group Votes New Name

Meeting Thursday evening in the first weekly session of the fall season, the members of the Hudson Valley Model Railroad Club voted to change the name of the year-old organization to the Kingston Model Railroad Club, operating the quarter-inch scale model Hudson Valley Lines.

The business meeting brought forth discussion concerning various plans for the improvement of the club and the miniature railroad system. Arrangements were made for some alterations to the interior of the club house and the providing of a better heating system.

Test trials were made of the chassis of the Mikado freight locomotive which is not quite complete, and the result proved very satisfactory. A visit of the Bridgeport, Conn., Model Society was announced for Saturday, October 29, when the boys from New England will invade the local club house to view the work of the model engineers.

Other matters pertaining to the club welfare were either accepted or rejected, and members were notified that Thursday's meeting was the first of the weekly meetings, held each Thursday at 8 o'clock at 541 Broadway, next to the New York Central freight station.

FASHIONS and HOUSEHOLD HINTS FOR WOMEN

If The New Styles Vex You, Try These Brow-Smoothers

HERE'S an all-purpose frock coupled with colored accessories which are smart, but not extreme. It's made of brown silk crepe with a jerkin bodice and sleeve accents of warm copper. The hat is a slightly deeper shade of copper velvet, the gloves brown suede, the scarf red fox.

Go Slowly With Your Hair Change, Then Build Up To That

By ADELAIDE KERR
(AP Fashion Editor)

This story is a style sedative for the fashion headache of 1938.

If you have been looking at upswept coiffures, dizzy hats and bewildering color schemes until your head reeled and you despaired of being able to adapt the mode to yourself, this is written for you

You are not alone in your quandary Coiffures, hats and a riot of color after years of easy-to-choose black make this the most difficult season for the selection of clothes since hair and skirts first went short Virtually every woman in America is in the same fashion boat with you

Don't Be Stampeded

Make up your mind to look thoroughly before you leap, to have fewer clothes, if necessary, and not to be stampeded into taking a single thing that is not for you It is better to spend a few weeks now looking like a 1937 fashion cut than the whole winter looking like a caricature

Begin with your head Buy two pairs of side-combs, made with flat teeth which widen in the center, and sit down alone in front of your mirror for awhile to try them out Then when you visit your coiffeur you will be able to give him a few hints on what is best for you If your hair is short and the new high line seems extreme, be content at first to get your hair off the nape of your neck—and keep it there

Let your wardrobe buys begin with a good girdle and see that it gives you the nearest possible approach to the small waistline the new mode demands

Emphasis On Coats

Then choose your coat (either a new one or last year's wrap cleaned and freshened) in a dark color which will combine easily with all your frocks Don't buy a striking colorful one unless you can have several.

Next, select one dress whose color matches or harmonizes with that of the coat and whose fabric and design fit it to go everywhere, from shopping to church Broad shoulders and big sleeves will do much to make your waist look smaller

Then, choose a hat which flatters your face and new coiffure Don't buy a miniature unless you are sure you're the type There are scores of reasonably conservative hats which are both new and smart.

Help On Colors

Guard yourself against a wild gamble in many colors Here are combinations to help you

Black coat, wine, green, gray or purple plum frock

Brown coat, lighter brown, rust, green, gray, mist blue or tea blue frock

Gray coat, green, brown or blue frock

If your dress contrasts with your coat, you may choose a hat to match the dress If you select a dress to match your coat (always a safe combination), try a hat of the same color trimmed with contrasting hue and add colored gloves of the same shade. Your shoes and bag may match your coat or its fur trim.

Film Curls Are Having Their Ups And Downs

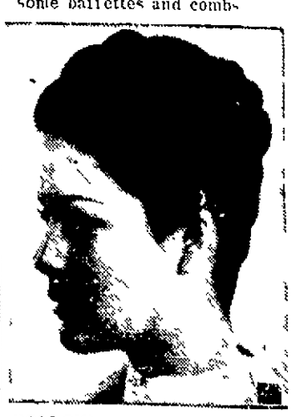
By BETTY CLARKE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

The battle rages Middle aged and young red-head and bleach blonde—all are putting their hair up and down—and down and up again Hairdressers and fashion experts nod favorably toward the new coiffure Husbands and college boys shout, "No" But everybody's doing it—even Hollywood

BLONDE CURLY LOCKS . . . Until a few short weeks ago Anne Nagel, beautiful blonde motion picture actress, wore her tresses long in a golden frame about her photogenic face

GOING UP . . . Because her fan-public wanted to see her hair up, she went to Hollywood's Westmores had it brushed and pinned up bought some barrettes and combs

BRUNETTE TRESSES . . . Movita, the Mexican movie star, also wore her hair in rolls and curls about her face. Mostly she parted it in the middle, left it loose about her ears.



FOLLOW Tempted by the new hair styles, she had her curls piled high on her head. Will they stay up? Hair styles hope so Upped hair means upped business.

Don't Fumble When You Talk Football Games

By JOAN DURHAM
AP Feature Service Writer

Don't carry your ignorance for a touchdown when you go to the big football game this fall.

You may find yourself classed as a dull guest on what you think is a dull week-end if you ask the wrong questions at the wrong time. Here's some help:

There are three chief ways of scoring: The touchdown, the field goal and the extra point.

The touchdown is made when a player carries the ball or receives a pass across the goal line. It counts six.

After making a touchdown, a team gets one try to score an extra point, which counts one The point is made by kicking the ball over the crossbar, by carrying the ball over the goal line, or by catching a forward pass over the goal line

A field goal is made when a player kicks the ball over the crossbars. It scores three.

Here are some other terms you should know about.

Kickoff—A place kick (or drop kick) made from the 40-yard line. It's a method of getting the ball into play.

Down—The period from the time the ball is snapped to the time the ball-carrier is stopped. Each team gets four downs—four chances—to gain ten yards If it makes the gain in that period, it gets four downs all over again.

Drop Kick—The ball is kicked after it has touched the ground, once it has been dropped by the kicker.

Place Kick—The ball is kicked by a player while it is held in place on the ground by another member of his team

Punt—The ball is kicked while it is still in the air. . . . before it touches the ground.

Fumble—The ball-carrier drops the ball by mistake.

Huddle—The grouping into which the team forms to make plans just before a play.

Line of Scrimmage—An imaginary line parallel to the goal lines and passing through that point of the ball nearest a team's own goal line.

Off-side—When any part of a player is ahead of the ball, his scrimmage or restraining line at the time the ball is put into play, he's off-side.

Quick Kick—A punt from a position close to the scrimmage line.

Tackling — Stopping the ball-carrier by throwing the arms around him.

Blocking—Forcing a man out of the play by throwing the body against him. (A blocker can't use his arms)

Clipping—Blocking by running or diving into the back, or throwing or dropping the body across the back of the legs of a player not carrying the ball. (Clipping brings penalties in yardage.)

Forward Pass—When one player throws the ball to a teammate in the direction of his opponent's goal.

Lateral Pass—A pass tossed at right angles to the goal line by the offensive team.

SPOT PASS—A pass tossed to a man who has been elected before the play starts to receive the ball in a specified position on the field.

Shovel Pass—A very short pass to an eligible ball-carrier from a man who is five or more yards behind the line of scrimmage.

Wallpaper Is Like Tapestry When Used The Modern Way

By MARY DAVIS GILLIES
Prepared by McCall's Magazine for The Kingston Daily Freeman

Papering a room is only an old-fashioned way to use wallpaper—even though the new papers are exciting enough to make you want to do over the whole house.

The new way to use wallpaper is for special decorative jobs—the way you would use tapestries, panels, carved woodwork and marble.

For instance, there's room with one wall which doesn't look right—it needs color Why not put up a wallpaper panel from cornice to baseboard to accent the colors of the room and form a setting for a favorite piece of furniture? A new crystal brocade paper would be ideal.

Dark corners, niches, alcoves? Strips of wallpaper in floral designs on luminous backgrounds such as silver and copper are just right for such places. For a bedroom alcove try the lovely new paper with fuchsia flowers or red carnations.

There's a paper for every kind of wall space For a wall in the game room or the fireplace end of a French provincial room, there's a textured paper in tans with a gay scene of red-coated huntsmen. For a Cape Cod living room, there's a quaint Audubon bird design At the backs of cabinets, corner cupboards and niches, papers with small flower sprigs, dots and plaids may be cleverly used.

A room can be completely changed with flower, leaf or geometric wallpaper borders—about the doors and windows, as a dado or to outline an alcove. Marble papers are fine for dignified dados. The neatest trick of the season is the new cedar fiber for cedar closets—it not only looks like cedar, but also smells like it.

Here are three modern suggestions for using wallpaper: As a panel over the bed; as wainscoating, or as borders.

Make-Believe On Menus Helps Balky Child Eaters

If your child balks at his soup, put a plate of toast animals alongside it and see if that doesn't change his mind.

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer

If your child is not a good eater, don't worry—do something.

If he's nervous or tired at meal time, see that he has a good rest before going to the table Perhaps you have catered to his whims or have talked too much about his food dislikes in his presence.

Get Away From Routine

An excellent way to stimulate food interest is to depart from meal routine. Or plan meals with an eye to looks as well as to taste. Serve some meals on a small table at a sunny window. Use gayly colored linens and china. Let the child join in happy constructive tabel conversation and strive to prevent any emotional outburst while eating.

Serve the foods in small amounts at first, increasing as appetite returns. Too-large portions are sometimes so overpowering they actually take away appetite.

Serve foods in individual shapes, molds and doll-sized dishes or an china of an unusual shape or design Often a cute little tea pot or tall bright pitcher and cup will popularize milk drinking. Children like to help themselves so pass the food and let them help themselves.

And remember, children love make-believe Play up to that. Potatoes and spinach get to be boring, even to adults. But if you offered Johnny a Chicken On a Nest for luncheon, you'd arouse his interest and, ten to one, put over the vitamins Shape mashed potatoes or rice into chicks and serve them on nests of green beans, peas, asparagus or spinach.

Try A Funny Face

Give Johnny a Funny Face Dinner. Cover a chop or some other meat with mashed potatoes, then make features on that with your vegetables. For pudding, give him Magic Snow. It's only a snow pudding with custard sauce, but new names will stir interest in old dishes for a child

Garnish soups with puffed rice, wheat or popped corn and put little sails on hard cooked egg boats.

Bake one-crust meat, fish or pastry pies in small baking dishes and prick an animal design on the top with a fork before it is baked. Something to catch the eye is often all you need

And don't forget "surprises." Hide dates, figs and other favorites in the foods or at the bottom of the serving dish.

Combining some of the must foods often helps. Serve milk in soups, sauces, escalloped and dessert combinations. Or mix some with cereals. As a novelty, use cereal as a filling for cooked peaches, apples, pears or apricots. Shape rice mixed with egg into cakes and cover with creamed hard-cooked eggs, vegetables or meat.

Toast Animals

Cut animal shapes out of bread with animal cookie cutters Spread with butter and toast a light golden brown under the broiler. Serve these to the children to eat with their soup.

(Incidentally, small thin squares of bread, buttered and then toasted, are elegant for grown-ups to eat with soup. It's buttering the bread before toasting that gives the flavor!)

Miss Murphy at Seals Conference

The Ulster County Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health was represented by Miss Katherine M. Murphy, secretary, at the Hudson Valley Regional Christmas Seals Sale Conference at Suffern, New York, this week.

Representatives were present from Orange, Putnam, Dutchess, Columbia, Sullivan and Greene counties. Plans for the 1938 Christmas Seals Sale were discussed with Mrs. Marie Warner Anderson of New York, state chairman of the Christmas Seals Sale.

Three sessions were held on list building, work of committees, publicity and mailing procedure. Mrs. Samuel D. Dodge of Suffern presided over the luncheon session and gave the representatives a splendid idea of the program of the committee work of Rockland county. A new educational film on tuberculosis was shown.

Miss Murphy told of the program in Ulster county—Camp Happyland, county nurse service, educational work, etc. The groups were especially interested to hear of the tuberculin testing program being carried on under the leadership of Dr. Frederic Holcomb, superintendent of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital. A report of the three year survey of school children was given and of the present school program, whereby all the freshmen of the city and county high schools are tuberculin tested annually.

The 1938 Christmas Seal came in for a great deal of discussion. This year the seal emphasizes the campaign slogan, "Buy Christmas Seals—Protect Your Home From Tuberculosis." The corner seal of each sheet of 100 presents drawings by I. Edward Mansfield of the following pioneers in tuberculosis work: Dr. Renne Laennec, who in 1819 evolved the principles of the stethescope; Dr. Robert Koch, who discovered the tubercule bacillus in 1882; Dr. Edward L. Trudeau, who built the first permanent sanatorium in the United States in 1885 and Einar Holboell, Danish postal clerk, who in 1904 first introduced the anti-tuberculosis Christmas Seal idea.

The seal sale campaign will be formally opened on Thanksgiving Day.

Local Man Aids In Radio Drama

A dramatization of Ellsberg's "Hell On Ice," with script prepared by Howard Koch of Kingston will be given over radio station WABC from 8 to 9 o'clock, Sunday evening.

The story is an account of Captain DeLong's ill-fated polar expedition on the 'Jeanette' and the dramatic version was written for the Mercury Theatre which is producing it over the Columbia network. It will be directed by Orson Welles.

Mr. Koch in explaining his part in writing the script says:

"We're using the new narrative first-person singular technique, which Welles invented and which I think is the most effective so far devised for radio drama."

A special orchestration has been written to synchronize with the action of the story and to aid in providing sound effects.

Sempervino Beats Willie Smith on Boxing Card Featuring Lou Ambers

Topping a card that was packed with action, a so-called whale of a show, with Lou Ambers, ex-lightweight champ as guest referee, Vince Sempervino, Schenectady 139 pounder, outpointed Willie Smith, former international 135-pound king, before a capacity house Friday night at the municipal auditorium.

Sempervino, deemed a likely prospect to go places in the pros next year by George Winn, editor of Boxing News, took the lead at the opening gong, and although the scrap was slow in comparison to the prelims, put it over Smith, leaving no doubt as to the decision.

Opening up in the third, with one of his two-fisted attacks, the former welterweight title-holder of the Hawaiian Islands, put Smith down on one knee (there was no count) and in the fourth tagged him with two hard rights to the jaw that staggered him.

In the fifth, Sempervino piled up his advantage by cutting loose, and although Smith mixed it with him, the outcome was beyond rescue as far as the New Yorker was concerned and Vince walked out of the ring the victor.

Lou Ambers, in a hurry to get back to Herkimer to rest up for a hunting trip today, asked to go on early, and he refereed the two bouts previous to the intermission. A great salvo of cheers went up as the boy who thrilled fight crowds here in yesteryears climbed through the ropes.

Ambers looked far different from when he boxed as Otis Paradise. He was nattily dressed in a sports outfit, green shirt and black trousers, and his demeanor was that of a champion, at ease every second.

"Glad to see you again," said the ex-crown wearer, as he shook hands with Buddy Emerson, the St. Remy boy who boxed him when the American Legion ran fights.

Marchese Kayoed

Buddy Moore, George Gainsford's good looking 185-pound prospect from New York, put the crusher on Moogy Marchese, Schenectady heavyweight in 1:38 of the second round. This was the semi-final bout.

Monk Armstrong, 156, Kingston, won unanimous decision over Guy Coremo, 156, Mechanicville, in five rounds. Armstrong floored his opponent for a count of nine in the second frame.

Charlie Raigins, 130, Saugerties won over Cliff Leger, Mohawk Indian, 133, in a bloody five rounder.

Jimmy Morrow, 120, New York, won decision over Sammy Travatello, 116½, Poughkeepsie, in five rounds.

Hank Bunce, 135, Kingston, outpointed Billy Pender, 134, Newburgh, in three rounds.

Dutch Williams, 168, Newburgh, knocked out Sam Yerkes, 164, Ellenville, in 42 seconds of second round.

Bill Singer was the referee, Bill Roedell and John Finerty, judges; Morton Finch, timekeeper, and Sam Riber, announcer.

State to Watch Duck on Hudson

Albany, Oct. 7. (Special).—A drive to put an end to illegal duck hunting along the Hudson river will be waged prior to and all during the open season on waterfowl, the Conservation Department revealed today. At the same time Commissioner Lithgow Osborne advised all district law enforcement offices throughout the state, that the regulations governing the taking of migratory birds must be rigidly enforced

"Numerous complaints," said Commissioner Osborne, "have come to my attention recently about shooting ducks out of season along the Hudson river. Many of these complaints state that there is also an unusual amount of night shooting going on. While our main efforts will be put forth to stop this out of season shooting of ducks on the Hudson, hunters throughout the state must also live within the law.

For the past several years we have been cooperating with the federal government and our neighboring states in carrying on an intensive campaign to 'bring back the ducks.' A great deal of time, effort, and money has been expended to provide many more ducks for the sportsmen. If we are to reap the benefits of this campaign, we must insist that the law be strictly adhered to. We do not propose to allow anyone to benefit illegally from the improved conditions."

Regulations, governing the taking of migratory birds in New York state, both as to seasons and bag limits have been adopted by the Conservation Department and conform entirely with those as set up by the Bureau of Biological Survey of the federal government.

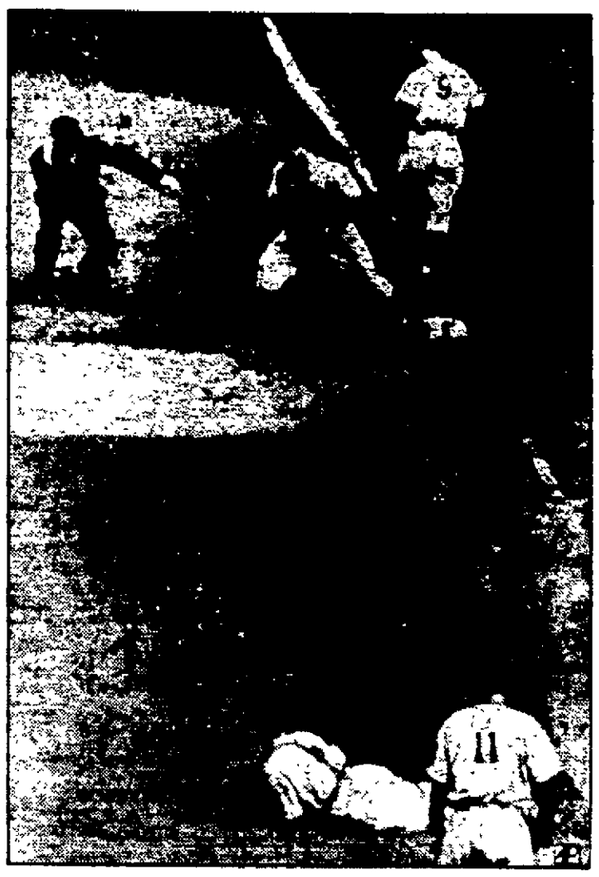
Rodeo Is Opened

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—An audience of several thousand watched the opening of the 13th annual world's championship rodeo last night at Madison Square Garden, where 200 cowboys and cowgirls are competing for $50,000 in prize money. A parade on horseback through New York's streets preceded the opening.

DICKEY SPILLS BUT GETS MAN



Yankee Catcher Bill Dickey took his spill while fielding Frank Demaree's bunt in the third inning of the second World Series game but managed to toss to Gehrig in time to catch the runner. First Base Umpire Sears waves the runner out. No. 11 is Lefty Gomez. The Yanks bats again proved too potent and they beat the Cubs, this time by a 6-3 score.

NOT FOR ANYTHING would baseball's "grand old man," one Cornelius Aloysius McGillicuddy otherwise known as Connie Mack, miss a world series game. The inevitable program in hand, Connie watches Yanks-Cubs battle with his wife.

Crowd Out for Navy

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 8 (AP)—Navy, its backfield crippled by injuries, faced Virginia's Cavaliers here today with a sell-out crowd of more than 20,000 expected to see the Tars' final home game of the season. Lem Cooke, ace passer and field general of the middy eleven, probably would not start, Coach Hank Hardwick said, because of injuries received in last week's game with V. M. I. His quarterback position will be played by George McDaniel.

Dangerous Team

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 8 (AP)—Syracuse, after winning an easy opening game, faced a potentially dangerous Maryland team today and hoped it wouldn't catch the Terrapins "on the rebound." Maryland lost its first two games this season and also two of its best backs, Jim Meade and Pershing Mondorff, but still had enough strength to make trouble.

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—The shell-shocked Chicago Cubs, beaten in the first two games in their home park, limped into huge Yankee Stadium today to renew the unequal struggle against Joe McCarthy's wonder team in the third battle of the World Series.

On the way out to the Bronx abbatoir they passed through a town not visibly excited about the annual blue-ribbon classic. The local fan, surfeited with World Series contests for the past decade, is fast becoming immune to the blaring of the bands, and the prospect was that the Stadium's 70,000 capacity would not be strained.

If the Cubs had been able to win one of those games in their own windy field there might have been an awakening of interest here. But the average New York baseball nut is convinced now that the Yanks will make it four straight, winding up with their third consecutive world championship on Sunday night.

Gabby Hartnett today had to gamble on Clay Bryant, a nervous young newcomer to the big series, while his rival, McCarthy, could blast loose with Monte Pearson, a series veteran and a magnificent pitcher.

Impressed by the way Joe Marty slugged the ball in the second game, Hartnett announced he would keep him in center-field for today's game, at least. Marty, who replaced Phil Cavarretta, collected three solid hits and drove in all three Chicago runs.

Despite the Crosetti-DiMaggio outburst Thursday, the Chicagos went into today's contest with a slight better series batting average than their vaunted rivals—.303 to .279. All except two of their 20 blows, however, had been singles.

There wasn't much doubt that Pearson would pitch a low-hit game if he felt ready to start. He has been out for some time with sinus trouble. McCarthy's second choice was believed to be his fine young pitcher, Spud Chandler.

North Bergen, N. J.—Joe Cox, 224, Kansas City, threw Rudy Dusek, 215, Weehawken, N. J., 18:20.

Kelly's Corner

K. H. S. Today, Giants Sunday —Ambers Popular Here

By Joe Kelly

Last night Bill Roedell, local police officer, shook the hand of Lou Ambers, the boy he predicted would be champion of the world. . . . Roedell gave his opinion after judging one of the kid's fights when he tossed leather here as Otis Paradise. . . . The boys swamped Lou for autographs at the auditorium Friday. . . . I'll sign anything but checks said Ambers as he neatly attached his name to pages of elaborate autograph books, pieces of paper and even on the back of cigarette packages. . . . What popularity! . . . Lou left early. . . . "I've got to get up early to go hunting," he said. . . . He expects to fight the latter part of October or early November.

Kingston High cross country team won at Monticello yesterday, 36-19. . . . A story of the meet will appear Monday. . . . A capacity crowd awaited at Michie Stadium, West Point, for the Army-Columbia game today.

Sunday at 10 a. m. the G. E. Giants will meet at the Athletic Field. . . . In the afternoon at 2:30, the Giants mix it in the first semi-pro grid contest of the season on the same field. . . . The White Plains Steamrollers will furnish the opposition. . . . A New York agency informs us the club has quite a rep. . . . Jerry Dann, coach of the Giants, formerly the Yellow Jackets, isn't worried. . . . He's well pleased with his array and hopes for the successful season. . . . Mac Tiano, Bill Thomas and Eddie Minasian are on the business end of the club. . . . Lots of luck boys. . . . Willie Smith wasn't as impressive last night as previously, but it was his first fight in quite a spell. . . . We think he'd make a whale of a battle with Carmine Fatta. . . . That Fatta kid makes 'em all travel at top speed or absorb a lot of leather.

Eddie Brietz of the Associated Press says: "World Series situation: The baseball mob hit New York yesterday like a hurricane. . . . It blew in from the west by plane and special train to be in on the "kill" which every one takes for granted will start at the Yankee Stadium today. . . . Even the Chicago writers have quit on Cubs. . . . Most of them predict the Yanks will do it in four straight. . . . The Cubs haven't quit but they are mighty low. . . . Gabby Hartnett was around the Commodore booming that it'll only take one win to put them back in the series. . . . Most tragic figure of the series so far is Dizzy Dean who pitched himself one whale of a ball game (with nothing on the ball except cunning) for seven innings until those homers began to fall.

"Latest on the Brooklyn situation is that Burleigh Grimes is out. . . . The only candidates to succeed him are Charlie Dressen of Nashville, Leo Durocher and Jimmy Wilson, the ex-Philly. . . . Another story has Grimes going to manage a Dodger farm in the International League and still another sends him to Milwaukee to replace Alan Sothoron. . . . Ford Frick, president of the National League, looks and acts jittery. . . . On the other hand, Will Harridge, head of the American League, looks plump and sassy."

Busy Season at Y. M. C. A. In Mixed Sports Program

Physical Director Chuck Henke of the Y. M. C. A., discussing the schedule at the "Y," reported on mixed activities as follows:

Badminton Club held its initial meeting Friday night, September 30. Twenty-three members were present. President H. L. Winter presided. The club was informed that more facilities at the Y. M. C. A. would be available for its use. Two paddle tennis sets have been secured and this new game will vie with Badminton for popularity. On Wednesday nights mixed members will have use of the entire second floor, the Badminton courts and the boys' department, for ping pong, shuffleboard and bridge. The lower gym will be devoted to paddle tennis and individual exercise. The evening's activities will be climaxed with mixed swimming.

Out of a discussion of the possibility of forming an Outing Club, came the suggestion that the Badminton Club be renamed Outing Club. A motion was made and carried to this effect. President H. L. Winter and Secretary-Treasurer Mayme Hutton were re-elected for the ensuing year.

Plans were made for the Outing Club to hold a hike as its first outdoor activity. N. J. Fowler and Mary Connelly were appointed as chairmen of the hiking group. Future plans will include bicycle trips, skiing, skating, etc.

Ladies' Clubs

Polar Bear Club—A women's swimming club which two years ago enjoyed a large membership is again in the process of reorganization. This group will meet weekly at the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday mornings at 9:30 to make use of the swimming pool.

Advanced Swimming—A group of high school girls have secured permission from the school authorities to have as part of their physical education, instruction in advanced swimming at the Y pool. This is a closed group and will be held from 11:20 to 11:50 a. m., Thursdays only.

Kingston Hospital Student Nurses—First year student nurses of the Kingston Hospital will have as a part of their training, physical education at the Y. M. C. A. This course includes calisthenics, games and swimming. Classes are held every Tuesday morning at 10 a.m.

Jamaica Handicap

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—Headed by William Ziegler's mare, Esposa, War Admiral's most persistent pursuer this season, a field of 11 good horses goes to the post at Jamaica today in the $10,000 Continental Handicap.

Schoolboy Bush of Kyanize Is the Star Pitcher for 1st Half of the City Ball League

Bob "Schoolboy" Bush paced the City League first half pitching parade with a sensational mound record of eight wins and one defeat for an .888 hill average. The Kyanize meal ticket carried the Painters to the first half crown on his sturdy right arm during his victory skein. Participating in nine diamond clashes, Bush showed clashes, Bush showed the way to the curvers in the victory columns, climaxing his mound campaign by flinging Kyanize to the championship in the Hedrick playoff duel.

Bush Brilliant

The Painters one-man mound staff hurled 50 innings of league ball, chalking up 40 strikeouts and allowing but 10 free strolls. Bush gave up ten runs which were pushed across by 31 safe blows registered against the ace of Jack Dawkins' first half champs. Bush incurred his lone defeat against Hedricks on a four-hitter and compiled a remarkable record during his flinging spree. The Painters fire-ball ace came up with two one-hitters, a two-hitter and a three-bingle effort and never allowed over six safe blows per contest. The Schoolboy fanned nine in the vital play-off contest with Hedricks for his high total per single game.

Neff Fans 84

Charley Neff, Hedricks fast-ball flinger, smoked his sizzler past 84 enemy batters for a new City League strikeout record. Neff mowed down 18 Closi A. C. woodsmen for a new single game whiff mark in a 1-1 deadlock on August 12. The Hedricks No. 1 boy set down totals of 15, 12 and 10 for highlights on his strikeout trail blazoned across the first half pitching records.

Neff hurled 67 innings in 10 contests during his iron-man stint, allowing 15 tallies on but 30 hits, one less than Bush's issue. Neff's 67 innings rates him as the hardest-working pitcher, 17 more than the Schoolboy slung. Thirty walks proved Neff's undoing as the Stone Ridge slinger wound up with a first half record of six victories and three losses for a pitching percentage of .666.

Toddy Uhl, who was drafted by the Knights for second-half duty, compiled a .750 average for Jones Dairy during the first round. Uhl worked 39 innings in six contests, fanning 19 and issuing the same number of hits. Bud Swarthout, Closi southpaw, and one of the real finds of the twilight loop, and Big Julius Chick broke even in the first half with a .500 rating. Chick flung 30 innings allowing only 14 safeties while Swarthout fanned 20 for his feature mark.

Paulie Misove allowed the most hits, 34, and the most runs, 24, but wound up with a .500 rating. Joe "Big Train" Brown, Jim "Lefty" Martin and Leo "Teeny" Komosa wound up deep in the cellar with three defeats apiece. Brown and Komosa were sensations in the second half but were decidedly far from the tops in the first round according to the figures.

Neff and Bush dominated the first half pitching array. Neff, incidentally, compiled a skein of four two-hitters, three four-hitters, a three-hit effort and topped them all with a one-hit gem against Kyanize. Bush's sensational work enabled Kyanize to clinch the first half after an uphill fight, while Neff's hurling kept the Hedricks in the thick of that historic pennant race all the way. Both were brilliant!

The official first half pitching records compiled by Jim Geoghan, City League secretary, reveals the following statistics:

Championship Midget Auto Races To Be Held Sunday at Woodstock

Woodstock, Oct. 8—The big debate heard this week among auto racing fans in Ulster county and one which has been projected into the columns of both "The National Auto Racing News" and "The Illustrated Speedway News" is whether big Jerry Maines, New York State's big car champion, will win the Hudson valley midget crown tomorrow afternoon at the Woodstock Legion Speedway.

Both journals have credited Maines with an edge over his chief rivals in Anderson, Carlson, Fanelli, Krantz, Dunham, Menges, Buckley, Rhymer, Jackson and Barnett, not only because of his mid-western record in standard cars this summer, but because two years ago he was one of the East's premier headliners at Freeport's municipal stadium.

Maines, who has driven in Dutchess county at Stormville and will draw a large crowd of fans from the neighboring city of Poughkeepsie, will drive Bill West's blue and silver No 2 throughout the afternoon, including the time trials at 12 30 o'clock.

Considerable metropolitan interest has been stirred in the race and delegations of fans from the subway loop and from Nutley and Union, N. J., will be on hand to see the preliminaries leading up to the big 20-lap feature.

Whether Carl Carlson will drive his No. 12 Sonny Special or Cliff Barnett's yellow and black No. 14Y is one of the conjectures among enthusiasts who attended the races last Sunday at Capital City Speedway, Albany.

Leon Warren of Troy, who last week at Albany rode for Bill DeMosh, will be another one of the big bets, as will Harry Giltzbach of Schenectady, who is king at the Syracuse Coliseum.

Sunday's program at the Woodstock oval is the last regularly scheduled cards of the season and the purse will be 60 per cent of the gate receipts. It will mark the final appearance of several of the drivers in the east until late next spring, since they will trundle their midgets off to the southwest for a winter at San Antonio, Albuquerque, Phoenix and Los Angeles.

The main events will commence at 1:30 p. m. sharp. Parking at the track, which will be supervised by Woodstock Post, American Legion, will be free. Deputies from Sheriff Molyneaux's office in Kingston will route traffic to and from the speedway grounds.

Kingston GE Giants Open Grid Season Here Sunday Afternoon

One of the greatest Kingston semi-pro football machines under the label of the General Electric Giants, backed by Al Relyea, anxiously awaits the opening call for tomorrow afternoon's gun starting off another season. For the first time in over 17 years the locals will be without their usual name, the Yellow Jackets. The Giants' opponents will be the powerful White Plains Steamrollers who are bringing exactly 22 gridders to the Athletic Field. Game time is 2:30 o'clock.

The tentative lineups for the Giants and Steamrollers:

Kingston		White Plains
LE	Nyulassey	Conroy (33)
LT	Spada	Smith (44)
LG	Zaccco	Monahan (34)
C	Beany	Maree (30)
RG	DeGraff	Collins (34)

RE	Glenn	Carney (14)
QB	Cullum	Wade (40)

FB	Thomas	Worth (60)

The Steamroller substitutes will be picked from Thore (46), McCormick (36) and Cannon (22). The Giants will probably have on the bench Lou Straley, Gil Kelder and Jerry Dann.

13th Season Best For Jimmy Foxx

Chicago, Oct. 8 (AP) — If the number 13 never before meant anything in the life of James Emory Foxx, it does now.

The major league baseball season just ended was the 13th in a row for Foxx as a full fledged American leaguer and superstition to the contrary it was one of his best.

The Boston Red Sox first baseman, who has been under the .300 mark only twice in his major career, wound up with the 1938 batting championship, final unofficial figures giving him an average of .349. He also batted in the most runs, 174, was second in home runs with 50, second in runs scored with 139 and third in hits with 197.

His hit total, in addition to the homers, included nine triples and 33 doubles and give him first in the total base department with 398.

It was Foxx's second league championship. He won the title in 1933 while with Philadelphia with a mark of .356.

After Heath's .344 average in this year's final ratings were the following sluggers, in order:

Ben Chapman, Boston, .340; Buddy Myer, Washington, .336; Cecil Travis, Washington, .335; Hal Trosky, Cleveland, .334; Hank Stainbacher, Chicago, .331; Rip Radcliff, Chicago, .330; Earl Averill, Cleveland, .330; Joe Cronin, Boston, .325.

Game Wardens' Orders

K.H.S. Schedule Starts Thursday

With the granting of the students demands in the Kingston High School for a longer lunch period there is considerable detail work before the new schedule can be worked out It is expected that the new schedule will be printed and placed in the hands of the student body on Tuesday and efforts will be made to place the new schedule in operation on Thursday

Until the new schedule is worked out it is not definitely known the exact time that school will be dismissed with the schedule in operation but it will be shortly after 3 o clock each school day.

Wednesday being a legal holiday there will be no school sessions held which will afford an opportunity of arranging the master clock, which controls the bells throughout the school As the new Myron J. Michael School operates on the same schedule as the high school it will also be necessary to change the master clock in that building so that it will correspond with the master clock in the high school.

Wide Gap Noted In Land Values

There is wide difference of real estate values in Rensselaer county between the New York Power and Light Company and one Schwartz over whose property the company seeks to acquire a right of way The company appeared in special term Friday and asked Justice Schirick to fix the amount of deposit which the company must put up pending condemnation proceedings taken to acquire a strip of land 75 feet wide and covering an extent of about three acres from the Schwartz farm

The company alleges the value of the property is $700 and the owner claims a value of $8,000 The court must decide what sum the company must post to guarantee payment of any claim or award made the owner Justice Schirick told counsel that the difference was so great it was going to be difficult to fix any sum, but the company was solvent and responsible The owner claims New York state recently acquired similar land and paid around $2,000 an acre. Decision was reserved.

Basil Smith Brings Action to Supreme Court

Basil A Smith of Lackawack has brought an action in supreme court for a declaratory judgment awarding him the sum of $3 000 which has been awarded by the city of New York to an "unknown" owner of land which was taken for the Lackawack water project. The award was made and the money held because of a title controversy.

Thomas Plunkett appeared for Smith and asked the court to direct payment of the sum to Mr Smith who is in possession of the property At the time the award was made it was made by the city to an "unknown" owner because of the fact that Mr. Smith acquired title to his property from a former owner, who acquired his title in 1920 through a tax deed.

In order to preclude any prior owners from later entering claim for any award the award was made to the "unknown" owner and the court now is asked to have the award paid over to Mr. Smith who is in possession of the property.

Sukkos Feast Begins Sunday

Sukkos, the Feast of Tabernacles, will be celebrated by the Jews of this community and by their co-religionists, for eight days beginning Sunday evening. The joyous nature of this harvest and thanksgiving festival contrasts with the serious mood of the High Holyday season just ended.

The pious Jew, however, affirms the continuity of the religious life and the connection between the High Holyday season and the Feast of Tabernacles, by beginning his Sukkos observance literally before he has concluded his observance of the Day of Atonement. Before he breaks his fast on that most holy day, he performs the first step in the task of constructing a Sukkoh—a frail, rustic booth in which he will take his meals for the eight-day period, symbolizing the bounty of God to the Israelites during their 40 years of wandering in the wilderness.

Sukkos is one of the three great "pilgrim festivals" of ancient times. With the Passover and the Feast of Weeks it was the occasion for a visit to the Temple in Jerusalem and participation in the service of thanksgiving to God. This theme of gratitude for God's providence is central in the observance of the holiday in modern times.

In the Bible, the festival is also called the "Feast of Ingathering," for at the time when the Jews dwelt in Palestine and were tillers of the soil, the character of the holiday was agricultural. Coming as it does at the close of the agricultural and economic year in Palestine, the Feast of Tabernacles was distinctively an occasion of thanksgiving for the fruit harvest and for nature's bounty during the year that passed. The people gathered in the precincts of the Temple and offered sacrifices on each of the seven days of the festival to symbolize the reconciliation of all nations with God.

The eighth day of the festival has been utilized of late by liberal synagogues as the occasion for a "consecration service," formally inducting young children into the Religious School. The end of the festival brings with it a joyous celebration in honor of the completion of the anual cycle of readings from the Torah, the scroll of the Pentateuch. At this time the last verses of Deuteronomy are read, the scroll is rolled back and the reading begun again with the first verses of Genesis, symbolizing the unbroken continuity of Israel's devotion of the Law.

Dewey Hits Albany County 'Mockery'

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey has opened his campaign for the governorship with an attack on alleged political corruption in New York state.

The Republican gubernatorial nominee charges there was "a mockery of the election laws" in Albany county and indicated he would make accusations against other city governments, as he opened his campaign yesterday with an address sponsored by Republican women's clubs.

The vote registration in Albany, Dewey said, "has never quite exceeded the adult population of the city, but it has often come very close to it.

"Because of indifference on the part of some citizens and even more so because of cynical disregard in high places, the will of the people is thwarted and political overlords are powerful enough to license organized crime and obstruct the social progress of the people," he added.

Dewey's schedule calls for a series of Monday night broadcasts throughout the campaign.

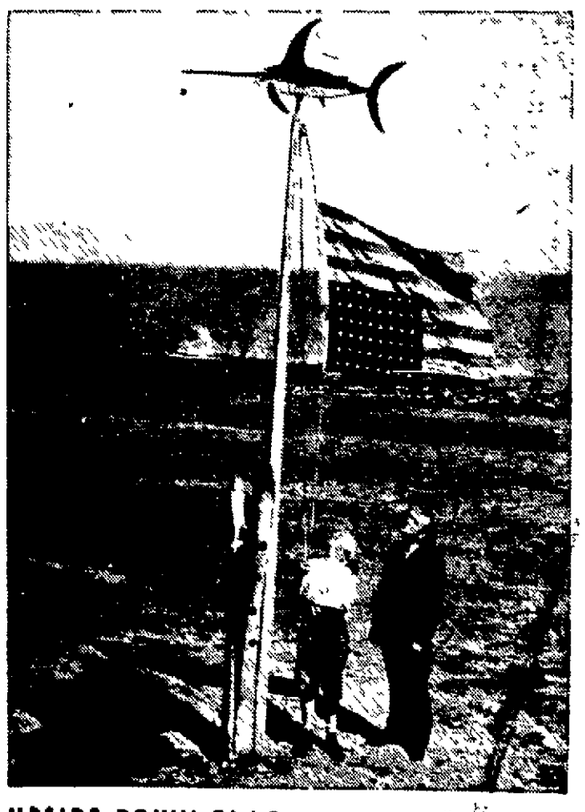
ONE-FAMILY KINGDOM ENJOYS ONE-MAN RULE

PEACE REIGNS IN NEIGHBORLESS KINGDOM—San Miguel island off the California coast near Santa Barbara, where Mr. and Mrs Herbert S Lester (seated, right) are sole rulers, and 14 miles of windswept sand and shells are the playground for their two daughters This is the yard of the Lester home. At the left is the tiny schoolhouse where Marianne, 7, and Betsy, 4, are taught by their mother, the former Elizabeth Sherman of Rye, N. Y. Both the Lesters are listed in the N. Y. social register.

INCESSANT GALES make portholes necessary for north side of the Lester home. Lester (above) was a war-time buddy of Robert L. Brooks, who leases San Miguel from the U. S. navy.



UPSIDE-DOWN FLAG gives "distress" signal from San Miguel island, Herbert Lester explains to George Hammond, Santa Barbara sportsman who flies mail to the lonely Lesters.
